

EXECUTIVE FORUM presents

Nora Mead Brownell, Federal Energy Regulatory Commission

January 13, 2006
Waltham Westin Hotel

Nora Mead Brownell

The Energy Picture in New England

The Associated Industries of Massachusetts Executive Forum welcomes Nora Mead Brownell, Commissioner, Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, for a look at the volatile markets for oil, natural gas and electricity here in New England.

A Breakfast with Nora Mead Brownell

Where & When

Waltham Westin Hotel
70 Third Avenue
Waltham, Massachusetts

January 13, 2006
7:30-9:15 a.m.

The rising prices of electricity, oil and natural gas have made energy a front-burner issue for business executives in Massachusetts. What will energy mean to the region's economy as it heads into what may be a long, cold winter?

Commissioner Brownell has served since 2001 on the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Her tenure at the FERC has reflected her unwavering commitment to fostering competitive markets in the public interest. She has championed the development of regional transmission organizations (RTOs) and markets for wholesale power, which now represent the electricity market structure serving two-thirds of the U.S. $10 trillion economy.

Registration

A.I.M. Members: $45/person in advance; $55 at the door;
$450/table of 10

Non-A.I.M. Members: $90/person in advance;
$100 at the door; $900 table of 10

To register, please call Julie Fazio at 617.262.1180, or go to www.aimnet.org.

Thanks to Our Sponsor

222 Berkeley Street, P.O. Box 763, Boston, MA 02117-0763